Andrew Jackson's Wife. HER DEVOTION TO HER HUSBAND.

[A letter, just printed for the first time, in the Cin-cionati Commercial.]

FEBRUARY 8, 1813.—My Dear Husband,— Your letter of the 18th January, from the mouth of the Cumberland river, came safe to hand. It was everything to me. I rejoiced; I was happy to hear you were in health. It was my nightly prayer to the Almighty God. My thoughts are forever on thee. Where'er I go, where'er I turn, the way for my doubts dison thee. Where'er I go, where'er I turn, my thoughts, my fears, my doubts, distress me. Then a little my hope revives again, and that keeps me alive. Were it not for that I must sink; I should die in my present situation. But my blessed Redeemer is making intercession with the to my bosom, where every vein, every pulse beats high for your health, your safety, and all your wishes crowned. Do not, my beloved husband, let the love of country, fame and honor, make you forget you have one. Without you, I would think them all empty shadows. You will say this is not the language of a patriot, but its the language of a faithful wife, one I know you esteem & love sin-cerely; but O! how many pangs, how many heart-rending sighs, has your absence cost me. My time passes heavily, & I am not in good health, but I hope to see you once more on this globe, & after this frail life ends, be with you in happier climes, where I shall experience no more painful separation, & then I shall be at rest. Ifeel a fore taste of the joys that are to the virtuous your happiness. I was delighted to learn you were pleased with Mr. Blackman & the other two clergymen, & the society in general.

Our little Andrew is well, the most affect tionate little darling on earth. Often does be ask me in bed not to cry, sweet papa will come home to you again, and I feel my cheeks to know if I am shedding tears. One of the extreme cold nights he got a little vext, and said he wondered his papa did not come home and sleep with him in his big bed. On Thursday last, mamma, said he, let's go to Nashville & see if he is there. I told him where you were gone. He said, don't cry, sweet mamma; you can't think how that has supported me in my trials. I wish I was with you-vain wish.

Pray, my dear, write to me often. It's a know how to make allowance for me. Catherine Caffery returned in a few days after you set out. The stock wants their master's eye; all your household regrets your absence, all wishing & praying your return. I paid Fields every cent that I did not send you in my letter. He was not satisfied. I then borowed $30 & paid bim. He was going about trying to sell your note. I have made nearly enough to pay

Sister Hayes, Mrs. McKeane, Mrs. Jack-son, Mr. Small, and Catherine send their best wishes to you. Please to present mine to Mr. Blackman and Mr. Hines Carroll, and may the Almighty God of Heaven shower down His blessings, His mercy, on you; assist you in the ways of life, in the ways of righteousness; be your shield in the time of danger, support you in all things, and keep you in the paths of wis-dom—the ways thereof is peace afar. Well, think on me, your dearest friend on earth.

Reside Love's Bier.

Beside Love's Bier.

BY R. T. W. DURE, JR.

Men came and wondered, when he died,
And stood with wet eyes by his bier.

"We never dreamed." some wildly cried,
"That Love could die, he was so dear;"
Some only looked awhile and sighed.

Then went their way: they had no tear;
One moaned: "''ve wandered far and near,
And sought for Love, and would have died
For his sweet sake—I find him here;"
Another kissed his cold white brow;
"Farewel," he cried. "Thom wilt not move;
Lternal slumber holds thee now;
No resurrection comes for Love!"
But one who stood spart a space
Drew near him gently, "Love," said he,
"He never truly knew thy face
Who saw thee dead nor died with thee."
